Library Objective

The purpose of this policy is to provide a framework for the development and maintenance of online, print, and media content acquired by and/or accessed through Myrin Library at Ursinus College. The main objective of collection development and maintenance is to provide access to an active, useful collection that reflects the curricular, research and cultural needs of the students, faculty, and staff of Ursinus College.

Community Profile

Ursinus College is a private, coeducational liberal arts college located in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania. It consists of roughly 1,500 undergraduate students. Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees are awarded in popular majors such as: Biology, Applied Economics, Psychology, English, and International Relations. Student: faculty ratio is 11:1. The Ursinus College Educational Philosophy “encourages students to think for themselves, so that they may become mature, responsible independent adults in an interdependent world”. The new core curriculum of Ursinus College is based on four questions: What should matter to me? How should we live together? How can we understand the world? What will I do?

Responsibility for the Collection

Myrin Library’s librarians and other Library staff members take part in collecting activities. Collections overall are guided by the Collection Management Librarian, who is responsible for the general balance and quality of the resources acquired. Collection development funds are used to select general and interdisciplinary materials and reference materials in all formats.

Librarians meet regularly to periodically review monograph acquisitions and subscriptions to periodical and electronic resource collections, and make decisions for future acquisitions. It is the faculty primarily who select the acquisitions, aided by the Library staff. Librarians, in their role as departmental liaisons, work with the faculty to promote the acquisition and eventual use of the collections. Librarians and faculty use a variety of selection tools to build the collection including:

- Publisher’s Catalogs
- Choice Reviews Online
- Interlibrary Loan Requests
- Circulation Data
- Patron Requests

- Online Usage Data

Accessibility and Inclusivity

The Ursinus College Library is an open and inclusive environment that is committed to providing equal access to library collections, services and facilities for all library users. Library staff will provide reasonable accommodations, special assistance and timely access to materials for users with disabilities, and will make every effort to acquire physical and electronic resources and assistive technology to meet the needs of those who request them. Patrons are encouraged to speak to library staff about their needs either in person or via e-mail to library@ursinus.edu.

Budget

The Chief Information Officer oversees the Library and Information Technology budget, and consults with Library and Information Technology Staff about its use. The budget includes funding for electronic resources, serials, standing orders, and monographs. The budget also covers general library supplies and interlibrary loan and document delivery expenses. The budget remains flexible to allow for reallocations due to changing formats of resource materials.

Copyright and Fair Use

Myrin Library acknowledges the authority of United States Copyright Law and the Ursinus College Copyright Policy, which can be viewed at: <https://www.ursinus.edu/library/connections-to-teaching-and-learning/copyright-fair-use/> . Myrin Library promotes copyright compliance among its staff and users.

Intellectual Freedom

Ursinus College pledges to uphold the tenets of intellectual freedom as denoted in the following documents of the American Library Association:

- Intellectual Freedom Principles for Academic Libraries at www.ala.org/ala/acrl/acrlpubs/whitepapers/intellectual.cfm
- Library Bill of Rights:
<http://www.ala.org/advocacy/intfreedom/librarybill>

- Freedom to Read
Statement: <http://www.ala.org/advocacy/intfreedom/statementspols/freedomreadstatement>
- Freedom to View
Statement: <http://www.ala.org/vrt/professionalresources/vrresources/freedomtoview>

Challenges

When challenges about the selection of materials are made, these complaints will be brought to the attention of the Director of Information Literacy and Instructional Technology, who will handle them on a case-by-case basis.

General Collection Guidelines

The library's collections exist to provide the books, articles, and other such resources needed to support the college's programs of study. Secondary purposes, fulfilled as funds allow, are to supply resources for faculty research, extracurricular study, and general interest and enjoyment.

Selection Criteria

- Curriculum Needs
- Authority of Creator
- Currency & Enduring Academic Value
- Format of Content
- Strength of Library's Present Holdings in the Subject
- Cost

General Selection Practices

1. Faculty-based supplemented by librarians', library staff, student and Ursinus Community requests
2. Chiefly English-Language based. Books are purchased in other languages to support curriculum.
3. Replacements – Missing, lost, and damaged books are assessed for replacement based on curriculum and circulation usage.
4. The Collection Management Librarian decides/has final say on the purchase of cost-prohibitive items. Justification is needed about their potential use.

Collection Format Statements

As traditional materials formats are supplemented or supplanted by new ones (e.g. videocassette to DVD to streaming), the library replaces the older format when appropriate, always preferring only one format, usually the latest, of any individual item. Evaluations of non-print formats are conducted periodically to judge future holdings capacity and accessibility.

Collection Locations

The library's web page "Navigating Our Building" provides maps of the different levels of the library as well as highlighting features found on each level of the Myrin Library building.

Departmental Libraries

- The Chemistry Library, a small departmental library on the second level of Pfahler Hall, is jointly maintained by the library and science faculty.

Monographic Standing Orders/Continuations

Standing orders consist of monographic series, sets, and continuations such as annuals, and biennial publications. These materials are reviewed regularly for continued relevance to the library collection, because the needs of the collection can change, or a series can change its focus over time. Librarians review standing orders on a periodic basis, and relevant academic departments are consulted during this review to help make cancellation decisions.

Serials

Serial publications (serials, periodicals, journals, newspapers, etc.) are the primary source of current information in a number of disciplines. Serials provide information not always available in books and serve to keep the collection up-to-date. Since serial subscriptions represent a significant and continuing expense, recommendations for new titles are reviewed with more scrutiny than is the case with requests for books. Pending available funding, the library prefers to add electronic serial subscriptions to enhance user access. Print subscriptions are added when this format is preferred (e.g. fine arts journals), the publication is only available in print format, and when the cost of the electronic format is too prohibitive. Scholarly journals that directly support the Ursinus College curriculum will be converted to an electronic format as long as access to journal content is deemed acceptable, stable, and cost effective. Whenever possible, a commitment to archival or “perpetual” access is desirable.

Selection criteria for serials include: faculty demand, indexing or abstracting in sources that the library owns, demonstrated need, scholarly reputation, price, and previous Interlibrary Loan requests

Starting a periodical subscription implies a long-term, ongoing commitment to the title. Periodical price increases exceed the rate of inflation and institutional budget increases. Over time, the proportion of the budget consumed by periodicals can grow rapidly and disproportionately. Periodic journal reviews are conducted by the Collection Management Librarian, currently every 4 years, to ensure that each title still meets collection development goals. Requests for new serial subscriptions are reviewed on an annual basis, and journals are added, if funds are available.

Preservation of Print Materials

Binding- Binding only of selected Ursinus College related materials is coordinated with an outside bindery.

Replacements – Missing, lost, or damaged books are reviewed as needed for replacement by the collection management librarian and other librarians. The decision to replace is based on multiple considerations including: circulation usage, the nature and cost of the work, and the availability of copies at other libraries. Since book repairs are no longer conducted at the library, careful scrutiny of the item, including judging the local or unique interest of the item is assessed before sending it to an outside vendor for repair.

Collection Review Policy

Rationale: An essential function of the library is to support the academic needs of the Ursinus College community. As such, the library's collection must meet current research needs and be relevant to the curriculum. One important aspect of collection development is identifying those items which no longer support the curriculum and removing them from the collection; non-relevant materials occupy valuable shelf space and obscure items that faculty and students are trying to find. In their place, newer or more useful items can be added to the collection. Review should occur on an ongoing basis across the entire collection, as well as occasional targeted projects which occur as needs arise.

Criteria: The following situations could cause an item to be removed from the collection:

- The item is badly damaged or worn beyond reasonable repair
- The item is superseded by a new edition and contains no unique material
- The item is a duplicate copy and there is no demand for many copies
- The item contains information that is no longer accurate or current
- The item is on a subject no longer relevant to the curriculum
- The item is recorded on an obsolete format (VHS tape, e.g.)
- The item is part of an incomplete set which cannot justifiably be completed
- The item has not been used in a reasonable time period (20 years, e.g.)

Note: This time period will vary by discipline

Exceptions to the above:

- An item removed due to poor condition will be replaced with a new copy if it is still useful to the curriculum.
- An item will not be removed strictly on the basis of circulation if it is considered to be a seminal or classic work in a particular field or if it is deemed to have probable research value in the future.

- An item containing duplicate content will not be removed if it also contains unique material deemed to be of scholarly value (bibliographical references, introductory essays, prologue, postscripts, etc.)
- An item in an obsolete format will not be removed if the item is still valuable to the curriculum and the cost to replace it in a new format is prohibitive.
- An item will not be removed if it is a faculty or alumni publication or has special significance to the history of the college or local area.
- An item may be withdrawn from the main circulating collection and placed in a special collection if it is deemed appropriate (published pre-1850, e.g.)

Procedure: The following procedures are in place to ensure an efficient and sensible collection review process which retains material that is still relevant and highly useful:

- Items meeting criteria for potential removal are identified by librarians and library staff
 - The Library catalog system will be used to identify those items meeting the qualifications for review (multiple copies, low circulation, etc.)
 - Those items eligible for review will be flagged for further consideration by appropriate Librarians and Library staff
 - Library experts will review the flagged material to determine potentially valuable materials that should be excluded from the de-accessioning process; only those items believed to be of level value will move to the next step
- Items eligible for removal are either tagged on the shelf or placed in a holding area
- Relevant faculty are invited to review items within a specific time period before a final decision is made; faculty will be able to easily identify those items that they believe are appropriate to remain in the collection
- Unwanted items are removed from the online catalog by library staff, and are offered to other organizations, such as “Better World Books”, or recycled.

Note: If faculty does not provide requested input for an item within a reasonable and/or agreed upon timeframe, librarians reserve the right to make a final decision.

Myrin Library’s Gift Donation Policy

The following policy is designed to provide guidance to those who wish to donate gifts to Myrin Library. Individual donors and college departments who have clients wishing to donate collections should consult with the Collection Management Librarian first about the ability to house the collections. A “letter of interest” outlining the contents of the gift may also be required.

The library may accept gift books on the following conditions:

- The gift item is in good physical condition and has not been exposed to mold, mildew or any other harmful materials.

- We are not under any obligation to add the gift to the collection. Once the gift has been donated to the library, it becomes the property of the library. Based on the needs of the college campus, we cannot guarantee that it will be added to the collection.
- If we decide not to add to the general collection, we are not required to ship the books back to the donor. We will find an alternative location for them, which may include, but not limited to: selling at a book sale, transferring them to another institution, or donating to a local agency/organization.
- If we do decide to add the gift to the collection, we are not under any specific timeline to have books catalogued and on the shelves. In addition, as a gift item becomes outdated, worn or is no longer being used, it will be withdrawn in the same way as items the library has purchased. We cannot guarantee the gift will remain a permanent part of the collection.
- If an appraisal is required, the donor is fully responsible for the funding and scheduling. To remain in compliance with the current tax law, the U.S. Internal Revenue Service prohibits libraries from being involved in the appraisal process. This needs to be completed prior to donation.
- If the gift item needs to be shipped, the donor is fully responsible for funding and scheduling of the transportation to Myrin Library.
- We cannot accept the following:
 - Textbooks
 - Magazines
 - Materials that do not contribute to the overall mission of the college
 - LP Records
 - Non-commercially produced videotapes
 - Unauthorized audio recordings
 - Juvenile books

Acknowledgement of the gift will be supplied to the donor via letter from the Collection Management Librarian. A bookplate with the donor's name may be placed in the book/s at the request of the donor. Please note: we cannot, by federal law, estimate value on the gift items for tax purposes. That is the responsibility of the donor.

Special Library collections that benefit from digital preservation and promotion will be a major focus as well.

Statement on the Removal of Items:

In general, items will not be removed from the repository as this is intended to be a permanent archive. In cases of copyright violation, the full text of an item may be removed after the claim is investigated if the item cannot be revised to remedy the situation. In all cases we will comply with publisher policies for self-archiving. In general, we will attempt to post articles available for full-text download rather than metadata-only entries. Providence Independent Newspaper, 1875-1898

The Independent Newspaper, 1898-1952

The Independent and Montgomery Transcript Newspaper, 1952-circa 2000

Other items from the Dewees Tavern archives, especially those relevant to Ursinus College

Electronic Books (E-Books)

The library is carefully enhancing its digital e-book collections subject to adequate budgetary resources, as e-book acquisitions include new licensing features, enhanced costs, and ongoing financial commitments for their sustainability. Currently, we prefer digital editions for reference works that are: updated regularly, support multiple simultaneous users, and are free of digital rights management requirements. When purchasing e-books, whether from evidence-based acquisition packages or singly, we prefer that they have perpetual access agreements.

Currently, e-book packages from publishers and aggregators are evaluated by the library, and either purchased or licensed when they offer a useful and cost-effective strategy for providing access to monographic content. The library works with library consortia for discounted e-book pricing.

Single e-book purchases are selected according to faculty needs, and platform accessibility. Print duplicates of e-books are acquired only if there is uncertainty about financial sustainability of the item, or preservation of its content.

Electronic Resources

Electronic resources refers to materials acquired for Myrin Library's collections which require computer mediation in order to access their contents. Access methods for electronic resources are dynamic and change quickly, making it necessary for the library to maintain hardware and network infrastructures in order to provide access. (See Web Services Policy).

Types of electronic resources collected include: Citation-only bibliographic databases, Full-text databases, journal databases, streaming video databases, electronic books (e-books), and unsubscribed online resources.

Electronic resources are like any other library material, and so the same selection procedures (e.g., scope, authority, price, etc.) are employed. However, there are some additional, unique aspects to electronic resources that are considered during the selection process, such as: hardware and network infrastructure compatibility, license agreements, and the product's longevity and continuing value.

In addition to purchased and leased electronic resources, the library staff may select freely available web sites for addition to library web pages, such as LibGuides, when a web site is recognized to provide searchable, accurate content from an authoritative source at no cost to the user.

When considering the deselection of electronic resources, usage statistics and faculty interest are major factors leading to their cancellation and removal. These factors will be monitored on a yearly basis prior to the resource's renewal period.

Open Access Collection Development

The library provides access to selected open access materials. Primary responsibility for selection of open access materials rests with the liaison librarians.

Faculty are invited to recommend for inclusion in the collection any open access resources in the fields of their subject expertise.

The same selection methods for e-resources apply to open access materials. Materials may be considered for withdrawal if they become obsolete, are no longer accessible, or no longer meet selection requirements.

Streaming Video

Over the past several years, a number of options for providing streaming video services to the campus have appeared. The Library has thus far piloted Swank and Kanopy, and has purchased some titles individually through other vendors. Though still not economically feasible to provide access to a streaming service for the whole campus due to a relatively flat budget, the intention is to pursue increased funding to be able to support robust streaming service(s) for the campus. In order of priority the goals are:

- First, to support the curriculum, including the entire Film Studies program, film study courses offered within various disciplines, individual courses in any discipline which seek to use films as texts, and research projects conducted by students that include films or require heavy use of films for analytical purposes.
- Second, to provide access to platforms like JoVE, the Journal of Video Education, and services like Films on Demand, which primarily consist of specialty videos created for the purpose of illustrating science lab techniques, experimental protocols, research results and current/historical topics.
- Third, to provide access to films for general and leisure enjoyment to all members of the campus community.

Given a budgetary increase, the Library is in the position to be able to support all three of these priorities to varying degrees. With the current budget, the Library will continue to purchase titles requested on an individual basis by Faculty members for courses. The library will consider student requests on a case-by-case basis, giving priority to films requested for research or special projects, including Summer Fellows and Honors. The Library will continue to pilot streaming services as appropriate and provide campus-wide access to films when feasible and possible. The Library will continue to request annual funding to provide campus-wide access to a robust collection of streaming video services.

Web Services Policy

Myrin Library's web services are selected and maintained for the purpose of supporting the needs of Ursinus College students, faculty and staff. Web Services include. but are not limited to, the library website, LibGuides, OCLC WorldCat Discovery, library databases, the e-resources A-Z list, and the online interlibrary loan interface.

Purposes of Web Services

- Ensure online access to library resources including scholarly databases, e-books and journals;
- Provide information about library services through the website and library guides;
- Utilize web-based services to provide both broad and subject-specific research guidance;
- Streamline library services for increased efficiency;
- Ensure accessibility and usability in an increasingly internet-based environment.

Support

Myrin Library offers support to the Ursinus community for all web systems provided. Librarians and library staff help students, faculty and staff to resolve any issues that arise, offer guidance on how to navigate the various resources, and liaise with the relevant vendors to resolve system-wide problems.

Access

Librarians and library staff work to ensure continuous access for all Ursinus users from both on and off campus, coordinating with IT to troubleshoot any access problems that may arise as quickly as possible.

Maintenance

The systems are maintained on a regular basis through regular tasks and application of vendor-provided updates. Maintenance that causes downtime is reserved for semester breaks whenever possible.

User Experience (UX)

UX is considered one of the most important pillars of a usable web system, and Myrin Library aims to continually optimize all web-based systems for increased usability for users. This includes consideration of different devices and browsers, improving search functions, improving navigation systems, responding to user input and researching additional web systems to ensure the library provides the most up to date and usable services possible given campus needs and resources required.

Government Documents

Myrin Library was designated a selective depository of U.S. government information in 1963. The depository has also been collecting print documents from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania since this time. Online government documents are found on library web pages and OCLC WorldCat Discovery. Except for print items deemed valuable to remain on the library's shelves, most print titles are retained for 5 years only, according to regular Federal Depository guidelines. Since 2008, the depository has been gradually shifting to a mostly virtual depository. The library and its staff abide by the law governing depositories (U.S. Code, Title 44, Chapter 19), and follow the regulations and instruction issued by the Superintendent of Documents, as well as instruction from the outreach representative of the Bureau of State Library in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Reference Collection

The Reference Collection consists of: handbooks, encyclopedias, dictionaries, directories, biographical dictionaries, subject-oriented indexes, statistical compilations, and atlases. In general, reference materials are those that support quick information, background, and research referral needs.

The Reference Collection is gradually shifting to an electronic one. Faculty and liaison librarians are consulted periodically when relocation and withdrawal decisions occur.

Online reference materials are selected by faculty and librarians, (eg. Credo Reference, Encyclopedia B., Oxford Ency.) subject to adequate budgetary resources and justification for long-term use.

Reserve materials

Reserve materials are held for a semester. They are requested from faculty just before the semester begins. Only personal items or materials from Myrin Library are placed on reserve.

Other Collected Materials

Audiobooks – Audiobooks are collected on request.

Children’s books – There is a limited collection of children’s books for curricular use.

DVD’s - DVDs are collected for class use and recreation, as Ursinus College is a residential college. DVDs are not to be used for performance. (Other college departments handle performance rights licensing.) Myrin Library collects audiovisual materials which accommodate: NTSC, Region 1, and PAL formats. Materials are to be used in the library, and circulated. They are not lent to other libraries. Replacements occur as needed.

Faculty Publications – Faculty monograph publications in print are received, either through donation or purchase, and cataloged into the circulating collection. Please see also “Digital Repository”.

Microforms - Microforms are no longer actively collected by the library. The library retains titles for microfilm that are less popularly owned by other academic libraries, and equipment is maintained currently for access.

Popular Books – Popular books are collected for the enjoyment of students living on this residential campus. Popular books are yearly integrated with the main circulating collection.

Inventory, Shifts and Relocations

Inventory of the circulating Collection is ongoing. Shelving location shifts and relocations of the collections are conducted periodically to prevent overcrowding as well as to prepare for building renovation projects. This process normally occurs during semester and academic year breaks, when classes are not in session.

What is Not Acquired

- Compact Discs (CDs)
- Duplicates of print books
- Print textbooks
- Print workbooks
- Print maps
- Videocassettes

Interlibrary Loan and Document Delivery

Borrowing materials from other libraries serves as an important, additional access strategy for specialized research. Similarly, the library facilitates access to collections at other institutions for students and faculty when needed.

Resource Sharing – Most materials are lent, except for archives, audio-visual materials, popular books, reference materials, reserve materials, and special collections.

Cooperative Collection Development

Myrin Library supplements and enhances its collections through cooperative collection development, resource sharing, licensing, and cataloging of electronic resources. The library is an active participant in the consortia: OCLC (Online Computer Library Center), PALCI (Pennsylvania Academic Library Consortium), LVIS (Libraries Very Interested in Sharing), Lyasis, and TCLC (Tri-State College Library Cooperative).

Students, faculty and staff from any library participating in the TCLC consortium may borrow books from any other of the 40 TCLC libraries through the Reciprocal Borrowing Program.
